Introduction

Having been in this foreign pursuit for some time I am pretty familiar with the field.

- I have read the ebooks
- I have watched the Youtubers
- I know most of the big agencies and sites
- I know all the approaches and have tried them all
- I know all about EVERY kind of scam
- I have made many trips to Ukraine and Russia
- I was once married to a Russian lady
- And NOW I LIVE IN UKRAINE

With that resume I can say that this ebook is unique. I have yet to hear or read anyone advocate in any meaningful way what I will suggest here.

Obviously the punch line is right there in the title on the cover page, so the cat is already out of the bag: The absolute best way to meet Ukrainian women is to LIVE IN UKRAINE for at least months at a time - and the longer the better.

Some of the "conventional approaches" to searching for a foreign wife can lead to success, but the cold, hard reality is that they are very unnatural and can take years and cost a LOT of money in the long run.

Depending on where exactly you're coming from this may seem a little out there.

If you're 32 years old, just reaching full stride in your career path, three years into your first home purchase, fresh off the purchase of a new BMW on a 5-year car loan, then this is going to be far more a fantasy for you than it is for my primary target audience.

Or if you have some truly insurmountable barrier to what I will suggest, then you can probably benefit from some of this material, but you can't do the whole thing.

Or finally, if your life is an idyllic paradise, your work is enjoyable, fulfilling, rewarding, and well-paid, and the only thing lacking is a partner in the journey, then "Living There" will seem farfetched.

But I'm going to go out on a limb here and guess that none of these are your scenario.

You're not 32. Over 45 is more likely. Your local prospects for solving the girlfriend/wife challenge are dismal. You have a job, but it's no longer a life mission.

And ideally, you're someone who has actually already considered some major life changes like finding a place to live where you can live inexpensively enough to retire early, and all the better if that place is the location with the highest concentration of beautiful women in the world!

If this is YOU, then you really just want to know HOW TO DO THIS.

If you're someone who has actually BEEN TO UKRAINE before, I'm 99% sure that you'd give your right arm to do what I've done and live in Ukraine for long periods of time. You're just not quite sure how you could pull it off.

Well, HOW to do it is pretty much the central subject of this ebook.

I'll talk about how to reorganize your life so that it is more mobile and flexible so that you can travel for months/years at a time. I'll tell you how to survive Ukraine, answering most of the big questions you'll ask.

And finally, and perhaps most importantly, I will tell you how to assimilate into the culture in such a way that normal, natural interaction with beautiful, single women is a routine part of your everyday life.

It's a journey you won't regret! The only regret you may have is not doing it sooner.

Ukraine vs Russia vs Belarus vs Etc

You may note that throughout this ebook I refer very specifically to Ukrainian women, Ukraine, and Kiev. Most of what I say will be applicable to most cities throughout countries of the former Soviet Union (Russia, Ukraine, Belarus, etc.).

Obviously some specific details will necessarily be different, but I have faith in you that you can extrapolate :)

Chapter 1

The problem: You're over 40 and looking for a girlfriend or wife

In America if you are over 40 and you're still single or single again and want a girlfriend or wife, you're probably screwed. I hear that things are similar in Western Europe and other advanced countries, but my first hand experience is in America, so if you aren't an American (U.S., Canada) please adjust as needed for your own country.

It's probably safe to assume that if you have found and purchased this ebook I probably don't really need to convince you that your prospects for relationships in your immediate orb (work, neighborhood, gym, church, etc.) are uninspiring at best.

I will further assume that you have already tried searching online and come up short.

And let me momentarily sweep aside any politically correct, delicate dancing around the subject and say it clearly... The women you run into locally are some combination of the following:

- Unattractive (to you)
- Overweight
- Angry
- Demanding
- Man-hating

And these kinds of things don't typically improve with age, so if you feel culturally constrained (or required) to search in your own age range the scene becomes much worse. And at least in America that cultural constraint is rigidly enforced. If you start fraternizing with women more than 10 years younger than you, you will be shamed into compliance.

In the rare event that there are attractive women in your life, they have so many options that you'll need some serious "game" in order to be taken seriously. The moment you start coming up short they can upgrade.

And it's no better online.

An even moderately attractive woman online gets hundreds or even thousands of replies per week. She probably won't even see your one message out of the eighty she received that day.

Even if she does see your message, there's still only a very small chance she'll reply. And if she does reply the chances are slim that it will actually lead to a real meeting, and even more slim that a real meeting will lead to a second real meeting, and so on.

Unfortunately, the chances that an online connection will lead to anything substantive with an attractive, decent, intelligent woman are astronomically slim.

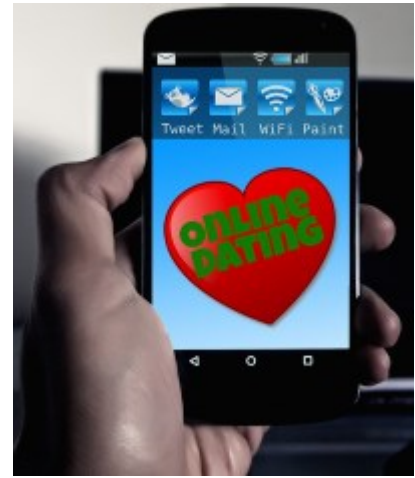

Basically you only have a few choices that I can see:

Option 1: Lower your standards, drink more, accept your fate, and pursue a relationship with the first angry, bitter, demanding, overweight woman you can find.

Option 2: Resolve yourself to just staying single till you die.

Option 3: Search for your woman in another country.

I know this Option 3 may sound a little extreme if you have never considered it before. But when options 1 and 2 are the alternative, maybe option 3 is fairly reasonable.

The Solution: Ukrainian Women

Ukraine is simply the best place on Earth to look for a girlfriend/wife.

Besides the WOMEN - which I will expand upon below - Ukraine has at least two logistical factors in its favor over many other foreign options.

First, it's CHEAP, at least relative to other options. And second, it is foreigner-friendly. Citizens of most advanced countries (certainly U.S., Canada, Australia, and all of Western and Northern Europe) can visit Ukraine for up to 90 days (in any 180 day period) with only a passport (no visa).

But let's talk about the best reason to search in Ukraine.

When I lived in America I could literally go DAYS without seeing one attractive woman, and rarely were those I did see THAT impressive. And those very rare attractive women are so frequently hit on by men that they often develop attitudes that make them unapproachable.

And I lived in Dallas, Texas. The combined population of the Dallas area (Dallas, Fort Worth, and all the suburbs surrounding them) is over seven million. And THERE I could go DAYS without seeing one attractive woman.

Admittedly I have never been a big player trawling the clubs, nor did I work in any high-traffic environment, but certainly you'd think I'd encounter an attractive woman more than once per week.

Now I have been living in Kiev, Ukraine since late 2016. You simply must experience the contrast to believe it.

In Kiev you'll often have eight eye-popping, jaw-dropping moments during a ten minute walk to the store any day of the week. The same goes at nearly any restaurant, cafe, or coffee shop - an eye-popping event MULTIPLE TIMES PER HOUR.

To try to convey this experience to you I have taken a few stealthy pictures while roaming through a few typical days and posted a few around in this chapter.

I'm limited in that I just can't capture the overwhelming numbers of women like this without getting busted, but these should give you an idea of what I see 20+ times PER DAY during summers just walking to the store, gym, or wherever.

Keep in mind that these pics were all taken with a phone camera and in contexts where it was hard to frame the picture very well or even stay very still. Also note that to stay out of any legal grey area I've intentionally only posted pictures that don't show faces clearly. But I'm sure you'll get the idea :)

That's summer. During winters most of the "sights" move indoors to stores, gyms, restaurants, etc.

For example, I have a favorite cafe in Kiev where I often go for a late lunch during the lull between their lunch and dinner crowds. It's very comfortable, and they have good food, good prices, power outlets near almost every table, and reliable wifi. It's the perfect place to camp out for 2-3 hours with my laptop, eat, and get some work done - assuming I can concentrate.

YOU WOULDN'T BELIEVE THE WOMEN at this place! And there you see more in WINTER. On a VERY SLOW day I might see five girls in the 8+ range come and go during the 2-4 hours I'm there. On a good day (like as I'm typing this) the number can be double or triple and can include a few 10s.

And there are usually around 25 customers in the room where I sit. Typically there aren't more than five men, and at least half of the ~20 women are attractive (8+).

Half of them are attractive, and almost none of them are fat.

Seriously, I've never seen any place like it!

Sorry, but for obvious reasons the exact identity of this cafe is TOP SECRET and available only in my "Ultra Platinum Services" package which sells for ONE MILLION DOLLARS :) I don't want a herd of eager men spoiling my "happy place".

But not to worry, almost every place in the center is like this.

In America places like Walmart, public transportation, and post offices are seemingly the places to go to see the worst that the American gene pool has to offer. In Kiev I see 8s-10s in the metro/subway, post office, and their equivalent of Walmart. And I have yet to find the places in Kiev where only fat, ugly people hang out.

This stark contrast will have a serious impact on your perspective if you give it a chance.

The wild real-world results of Kiev's supply-demand imbalance

So Kiev has an unbelievable supply of beautiful women. But what does that do for you? It's not like you can just walk up to any of these beautiful women at random and ask them out, right?

Well, we'll get to that in a later chapter, but for the sake of argument let's just say no, of course you can't just walk up to any hot girl and ask her out. But this over-supply of beautiful women definitely changes things.

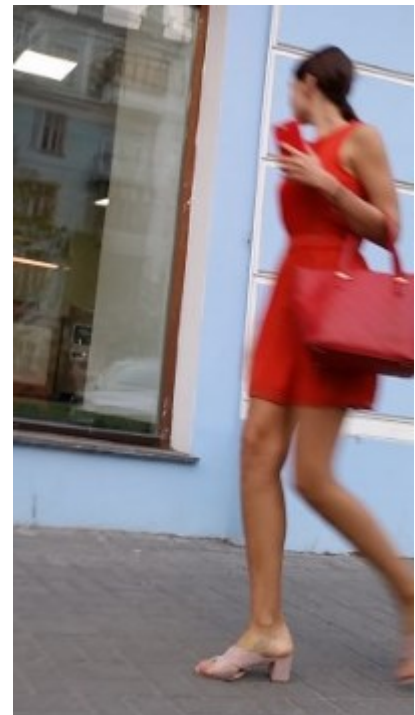

You might be naturally inclined to think of this from the American perspective where these women would be very hard to approach cold.

An attractive American woman (at least an "8") can't leave her home and walk into a Starbucks without being hit on five times. By the end of the day she's probably had to fend off at least 20-30 men. This forces her to develop some time-saving screening tactics.

In other words, it forces her to be a bitch. Not that there's anything wrong with that (for you Seinfeld fans). She has little choice.

She wears a baseball cap pulled far over her eyes. She wears earphones. You can't speak with her or even make eye contact without a major effort.

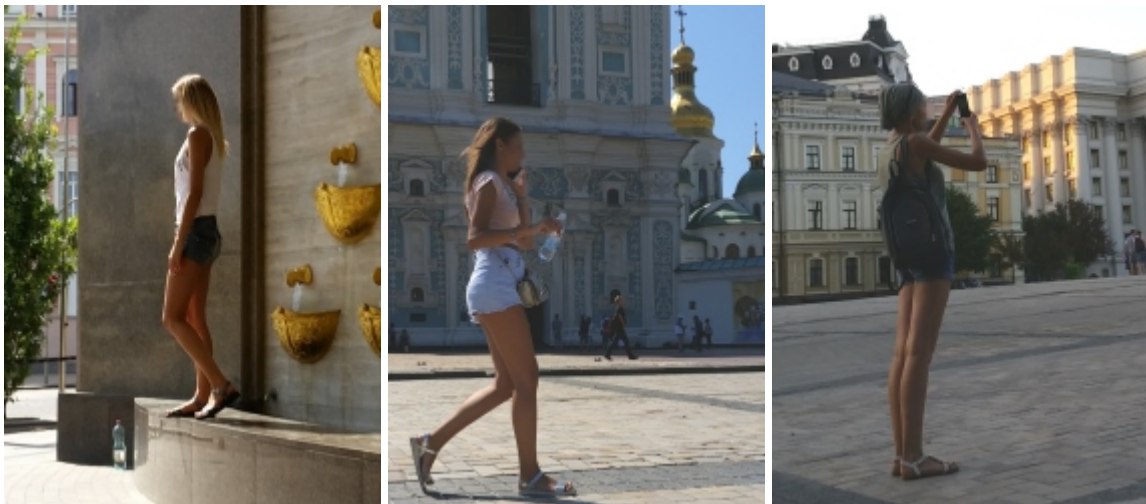

That effectively weeds out timid, insecure, unskilled, and unmotivated men, and thereby gets the queue down to a manageable size.

But here's the thing... In Kiev an "8" will be attractive, thin, fit, and shapely. She'll wear nice makeup, feminine clothing, and high heels. And she'll have LONG, GORGEOUS HAIR (sorry for the all-caps, but girls in Kiev have unbelievable hair!)

...and RIDICULOUSLY LONG SHAPELY LEGS...

But in Kiev that "8" would have to set herself on fire to stand out.

She is certainly not hit on 40 times/day. She may not be hit on 10 times in a year. She may not even get a second look very often. Consequently, she may not even think of herself as all that attractive. So she does what she can to GET ATTENTION, not chase it away.

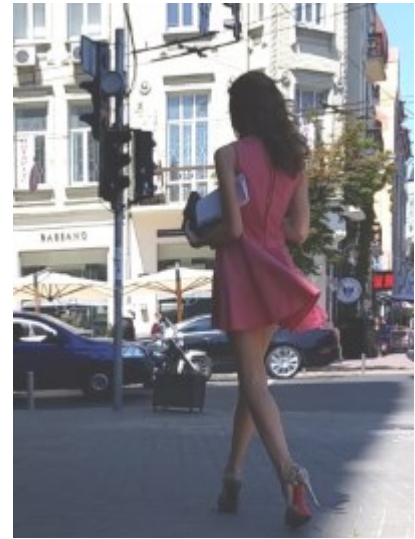

You might be inclined to extrapolate from this that the real difference between Kiev and America is simply the "height of the bar"... that in Ukraine a woman needs to be at least a 9.4 to need tougher screening techniques, whereas in America she only needs to be at least a 6.2 (all figures for illustration purposes only, but if this paradigm were true those numbers wouldn't be far off :).

But that's not exactly how it works. In reality the sheer abundance of beautiful women in Kiev means that beauty just isn't nearly as special. Not even a 9.0 is all that big a deal.

OF COURSE a 9+ can be a bit of a princess, but it's not nearly as safe to assume as would be the case in America. And for those who are difficult, it's pretty easy to spot them. And frankly, when you encounter them it's much less a blow to your hopes and dreams because you eventually learn that if you'll just wait all of eighteen minutes you'll encounter another 9+ who may not be such a princess.

Supply-Demand from a Ukrainian girl

Now let's hear this from the other side. "Irina" is a Ukrainian girl who married a guy from Arizona and moved there to be with him.

Irina went on to MODELING SCHOOL in NEW YORK, played bit parts in several TV shows and at least one movie, was FEATURED on a regional TV lingerie commercial, and routinely participated in runway fashion shows (like as a real life model).

Irina, a LINGERIE MODEL, RUNWAY MODEL, and ACTRESS in the U.S. - an easy 9+ on anyone's scale - says one thing she especially liked about living in the U.S. is that people noticed her. PEOPLE NOTICED HER.

No crap! I'm sure if she walked down the sidewalk of any high-traffic city street there would be a trail of traffic accidents in her wake.

But in her home city in Ukraine NO ONE NOTICED HER. And her home city wasn't even Kiev.

This is EXACTLY what I'm saying. I trip over five girls better looking than Irina during a 10-minute walk to the store in Kiev. It's just good to have corroboration from the other side.

So in Kiev it's not very hard to get on the radar of an "8" because ON AVERAGE physical beauty isn't nearly the rare commodity there as it is in America, and consequently there's far less attitude associated with it.

So, those "cold approach" skills... they may not need to be all that great.

Just to come clean here, my cold-approach skills could use some work. But it's difficult to work on them because by simply wandering out of my apartment and doing a minimal amount of assimilation into the culture I usually have all the social life I can handle at one time.

Supply-Demand from a Ukrainian teenage boy

I was talking to "Alex" (fake name), the 16 year old son of one of my Ukrainian friends and the subject of dating came up. In that context I asked him if he would ever go out with a girl just because she was really good looking.

He said "Of course".

Then I remembered a previous conversation in which he complained about girls being late, and how much that annoyed him.

I explained to Alex that while I was completely sympathetic to his point about dating a girl just because she was good-looking, the fact is that really good-looking women can be really difficult.

They expect more gifts, more expensive dates, and they can be LATE for dates without any remorse, etc. In other words, good-looking girls aren't always worth the trouble.

He said, "Well, I've thought about that, and if a good looking girl is too much trouble I wouldn't tolerate it. There are a lot of beautiful girls. I would just find another one."

WOW! Let that sink in for a moment. It explains a hell of a lot!

A 16 YEAR OLD BOY IN AMERICA JUST CAN'T SAY THAT, let alone a 45+ year old man. It's a basic fact that EVERYWHERE one turns in Kiev there are gorgeous women. It simply isn't the case in America.

If a 16 year old boy (far more so a 45+ man) in America gets the attention of a really attractive girl, he needs to count his lucky stars, kiss her ass, tolerate her disregard for him, and do whatever he must in order to stay in her good graces. There are exceptions, of course, but this is very common.

Deep down this ass-kissing never really satisfies the girl in the long run. But if she's impatient and shortsighted, then as soon as the boy doesn't comply, she says to herself something similar to what Alex said about Ukrainian girls: "Well, if he won't buy me nice things there are many other boys who will... I will just find another boy who will treat me better." Ukrainian girls can't say that.

And this dynamic has a very logical, predictable result: Really attractive girls in Kiev CAN'T be that difficult or they won't have a social life because all the boys have made the same calculations as Alex did.

In order to compete they need more than their looks. Beauty simply isn't in that short of a supply, so they need to BE NICE, interesting, intelligent, or at least considerate.

It brings a refreshing balance to the game. It's HOW IT SHOULD BE.

Chapter 2

How to meet Ukrainian women

OK, OK, so Ukraine is THE PLACE to search for a girlfriend/wife, but HOW does one go about finding such a woman? The logistics introduced by the 5000-8000 mile commute between America and Ukraine can seem insurmountable.

Many approaches for solving these logistics problems have evolved over the years since the breakup of the Soviet Union, like large pay-per-letter network sites/agencies, group "romance tours", individual tours, and normal online dating (i.e. like match.com except international). I'll refer to these collectively as "conventional approaches".

A detailed description of each approach would be a tangent from the main point of this ebook, but here's a high-level summary of the best two:

The Correspondence Approach. Basically you meet girls on Russian/Ukrainian dating sites, like www.Russian-Ukrainian-Women.com, where you pay one price for a period of time (NOT for each message). You write to girls there, talk to them via Skype video, narrow your prospects to ONE, get to know her via Skype/etc., then make a trip to see ONLY her.

Using this approach you really must plan on being ready to board a plane within a MAXIMUM of 3-4 months from first contact.

In rare cases this may go well enough for you to propose on that one visit, but usually you remain in touch, visit again, and eventually propose marriage (assuming all continues to go well).

If you can't do what I'm going to suggest below, this "Correspondence Approach" is your best option if your goal is to find a girl to marry.

Individual Tours. With an individual tour you visit one city with the assistance of an agency. Most such tour arrangements will include an apartment, airport shuttle, consultations, and "introductions".

You provide the agency with a few recent pictures of yourself, a 1-2 page general intro letter describing yourself, your life, your intentions, and what you seek in a girl. You also provide a list of girls you would like to meet from that agency's site.

The agency then contacts each girl on your list, sends her your pictures and intro letter, and asks her if she'd like to meet you, and schedules your first date if she agrees.

It's almost like a variation of "speed dating". You have 2-4 first dates per day for a few days, then request second dates with the girls with whom you felt a connection. After your second dates you narrow your list further.

You proceed this way until you narrow it to one, then keep in touch with her until you can arrange to visit again just to see her. OR, if it goes REALLY well, you can propose right on the spot.

Conventional Approaches

ALL these conventional approaches work... no doubt about it. There are success stories from every approach. The best approach by far is the correspondence approach (at least in terms of success rate).

I met and married a Russian woman using the correspondence approach, so I KNOW that works. We are divorced now, but that really wasn't due to any flaw in the way we met.

And I know men who married Russian/Ukrainian women using the individual tour approach.

And shockingly, I even heard of one man who met a girl through pay-per-letter services.

When he traveled to meet her, the translator confessed that the girl he was writing never saw or answered his letters, and that she (the translator) was, in fact, the one reading and writing all the letters. But she said that through those letters she grew to really like the man and would like to spend time with him.

So anything CAN happen.

But here's the thing... Unless you do everything right, successfully avoid any tangents on scammy operations, and are REALLY focused, strategic, grounded, deliberate, and not easily distracted, all these approaches face some seriously long odds, and success could require A LOT OF TIME AND MONEY.

Allow me a moment to elaborate.

Unless you are REALLY focused

I say "Unless you are REALLY focused, strategic, grounded, deliberate, and not easily distracted" you face long odds and could spend a lot of time and money on the process of finding a foreign wife.

I know a guy from the Dallas area who went to Russia ONE TIME on a three-week individual tour. Let's call him "Mark".

By all accounts Mark was a frumpy, pudgy, corporate I.T. nerd who I'm sure has memorized every line of every episode of every Star Trek series ever made. I wouldn't even be surprised if Mark had a Star Trek costume or two hidden away in the back of his closet and maybe even showed up at a few Star Trek conventions.

Rounding to the nearest full percentage point, Mark's chances of finding a relationship in the Dallas area were a flat ZERO. He had NO "game", and he knew it.

His one and only trip to Russia was for a fairly standard individual tour deal as I describe above.

For the first few days he had 4-5 dates/day taking careful notes (obviously AFTER the dates). Then he requested second dates with his favorites from the "first round" and repeated the process.

By the end of the trip he had chosen "Victoria". On their final date he PROPOSED MARRIAGE THROUGH AN INTERPRETER (she didn't speak a word of English and an interpreter was present on all their dates).

She accepted, and Mark immediately started the fiancée visa process. While waiting for the visa approval Mark arranged for her private English lessons for Victoria such that she spoke adequate English by the time she arrived in the U.S.

By the last time I spoke with Mark he was happily married to Victoria for over 10 years.

Mark hit a hole-in-one! He went to Russia ONE TIME in his life and found a wife. A case like that warrants a little analysis.

So, what was his secret?

Well, first he had very specific, objective requirements for his "list" (the girls he initially requested to meet).

1. They had to have at least one picture in their profile where they were SMILING
2. Their profile could not mention OR imply any preference regarding their man's LOOKS or MONEY

In his version of "speed dating" (the 30 first dates in 4-5 days) he continued to apply these concepts. Girls who came off as shallow by talking about a man's looks or wealth were eliminated. Girls who came off as especially positive and grounded advanced to the next round (i.e. next date).

He didn't get sidetracked by any flash or glitz. He didn't start thinking to himself, "Geez, maybe I can actually shoot a little higher here..."

NO, he stuck to his target.

I've met Victoria (his wife). While I was impressed, I can tell you she probably wasn't the best looking girl he met on that trip, and that better looking girls probably would have accepted his proposal.

I'd rate her at a solid "6.5". But she's thin, fit, educated, and intelligent.

Mark is what I think of when I think of "focused, strategic, grounded, deliberate, and not easily distracted".

If Mark had chosen the correspondence approach instead of the individual tour approach he would have probably succeeded that way too.

Most guys aren't that focused

You probably aren't as "focused, strategic, grounded, deliberate, and not easily distracted" as Mark.

No offense, I'm not not as focused as Mark either.

If you aren't quite as focused as Mark there are a LOT of ways that pursuing a Ukrainian woman can take a LONG TIME and COST A TON OF MONEY... even if you follow all the "best practices" (avoid scams, use correspondence approach, etc.).

More than likely, you'll make costly errors.

You'll start on the correspondence approach, but then get the bright idea that you can't really make such a crazy long, expensive trip to see just ONE girl, so you figure you'll try to tweak the system to sneak in a few dates with your other correspondents.

That will almost surely make that trip a flop with ALL the girls you meet.

Or, you'll meet one girl and have a great time together, but it feels too soon to propose, so you leave with the intent to stay in touch and visit again in six months when you can get some more time off work and replenish the bank account.

But during such a long time the magic usually fades and one or both of you lose interest. Then you go back to square one.

Or it doesn't fade, and you make another trip. This time you rendezvous in Dominican Republic so that it will be a little more "special".

THEN it fades away, so you go back to square one.

You never start this journey thinking it will involve $30,000+, 10+ trips, and 10+ years, but $30,000+, 10+ trips, and 10+ years later you look back and you're there.

The Cost

In a nutshell bringing a foreign fiancée to America, marrying her, and making her legal will cost around $5000 AFTER THE PROPOSAL. That's her one-way flight, all the fiancée filing fees and associated costs, some shipping of a few things, AND the "change of status" filing fee after you're married. That fee alone is $1500.

This does not include any costs of a wedding, rings, honeymoons, or anything like that.

This estimate also assumes you do everything yourself instead of passing it off to an immigration attorney. It's just the "business end" of getting her to the U.S. and making her legal.

The costs before the proposal vary much more widely, and mostly involve the costs of all your trips.

Each ~10-day trip to Ukraine will cost around $4000, an estimate which includes airfare, lodging, food, and entertainment. If you're especially budget-conscious it could be $1000 less, and if you're a big spender it could be $1000 more. We'll stick with $4K as a reasonable average.

If you decide to rendezvous at some "neutral" location for a more festive atmosphere (think Dominican Republic) that's going to run you at least $6000.

Now let's talk about time.

The Time

Not only does every trip add ~$4000 to the price tag, for most men it takes away from vacation time that they can use for trips. In other words, most guys can't just take off work a week out of every month.

Most guys can only manage 2-4 weeks of vacation time per year. Given the length of the trip to Ukraine it's more workable if that's taken in fewer longer trips rather than more frequent shorter trips.

So every failure that creates the need for another trip causes you 4-6 months of "bench time" between visits.

Now you can see how the cost - both in dollars and years - can really start to add up.

Mind you, however, that this $30,000, 10 trips, and 10 years aren't completely LOST. Most of those trips will probably be a blast. You'll have a blast. You'll meet interesting people. And you will experience a part of the world that most westerners only see in James Bond and Mission Impossible movies. It's interesting, fun, and exciting.

But the GOAL is to find a WIFE, so if you fail at that then partly it was a waste.

AGAIN, if you're very smart about it, like Mark, this $30K/10 trip/10 year plan can be avoided.

But the $30K/10 trip/10 year option is NOT UNUSUAL.

Not 100% All-Natural

In my opinion the major problem involved in all conventional approaches that costs so much time and money is the lack of a "natural" context in which to start and build a relationship.

Note that my mission here is to help you find a girlfriend or wife, and THAT kind of relationship is extremely difficult to build on a firm foundation by Skype and week-long visits every 6-18 months.

And the little time you do get to spend together is also unnatural. It's always when at least one of you is "on vacation". It involves very little "real life".

And it is high pressure by its very nature. You have these short bursts of time during which something good must happen. When things don't escalate well (and quickly) it's hard to keep going.

"All-Natural" in a relationship context is meeting, then dating, then marrying, like it might happen with a high school sweetheart or with the cute single girl who works in your department at work, etc.

Completely unnatural is where you decide you want to marry a beautiful single Ukrainian girl who is between 33 and 36 years old, 5'5", 115 lbs., with brown hair and green eyes, then go flipping through a catalog looking for this girl. You find each other, fill out each others' "questionnaires" to confirm that you meet each others' expectations, then tie the knot.

There's a lot of room for failure there!

It CAN work, but it often doesn't.

A Better Approach

There is a better approach that makes a hell of a lot of sense and solves a LOT of problems. I'm sure you can guess it based on the title of this ebook: LIVE IN UKRAINE!

Chapter 3

The BEST WAY to Meet Ukrainian Women is to LIVE IN UKRAINE!

In order to succeed in this endeavor there's ABSOLUTELY NOTHING that beats just BEING THERE FOR LONG PERIODS OF TIME (absolute minimum one month at a time).

But this isn't just an extended "Individual Tour" where you meet girls through agencies or websites.

You could do that and it would still work better than the conventional 1-2 week visits, but the approach I'm suggesting involves assimilation and building more natural acquaintances and relationships.

And in subsequent chapters I will tell you about fool-proof ways to assimilate in Ukraine such that beautiful women are a perfectly natural part of your everyday life, all without the use of any dating sites, dating apps, agencies, bars, or clubs.

At it's most extreme, this approach can mean extended or permanent relocation.

You may be familiar with InternationalLiving.com. It is the central website for the new subculture of Americans who choose to retire in other countries where their dollars go much further.

Places like Costa Rica tend to be popular for this purpose. Costa Rica is close to the U.S., it has a great climate, great standard of living, great medical/dental care options, it's stable, and it costs about HALF as much to live there as in the U.S.

Well, for single men Ukraine should be of great interest. Besides the gorgeous women, the costs are 20% to 25% of the costs in the U.S. (and half that of Costa Rica).

This approach has a wide range of application. At the minimum it means spending at least 1-3 months at a time, and assimilating in such a way that you don't even need to rely on dating sites or agencies.

At the maximum it can mean simply moving to Ukraine indefinitely.

This is the "Live in Ukraine" approach.

It solves a LOT of problems, removes LOTS of risks, TAKES MUCH LESS TIME, it's much more FUN, and COSTS MUCH LESS than any of these other approaches where you try to build a relationship quickly, artificially, and from a great distance.

But this approach also presents a number of challenges for most people.

But I have responsibilities - I can't just leave for a few months!

I can DEFINITELY hear it now, "But I'm an ADULT! I have responsibilities. I have a JOB, a house, a mortgage, a family, friends, a dog, a cat, and a goldfish. I can't just leave for three months at a time! Who would feed the goldfish?"

If you're a lifer in this domestic prison and this ebook is your first exposure to the idea of escaping it and rearranging your life for extended travel to exciting, interesting places, I'm probably not going to convince you to quit your job and sell your house right now.

If this is you, you may just need to continue in the domestic life for a while longer. You'll probably come across more and more travel blogs and other voices presenting similar concepts to what I present here. Then maybe it won't seem as weird.

Or maybe you'll pursue the other methods of finding a Ukrainian woman and make a few 10-day trips to Ukraine and will be more motivated to find a way to stay longer. Then you'll remember this ebook, and some of the things I said that seemed so far "out there", and maybe you'll search your hard drive for it and take it a little more seriously.

The "live in Ukraine" approach isn't for everyone

If you're totally happy and content with your job, house, mortgage, family, friends, dog, cat, and goldfish and wouldn't change any of that for the world and you're just lacking a special woman with whom to share it, stick with the other approaches. The "live there" approach probably isn't for you, at least not now.

Or if you are the primary custodial single parent of a three year-old child, or if you are the only family member able to care for your 90 year-old mom in her final years, then that is your calling in life for now. You can't leave her for months at a time.

But it may be exactly what you need

OTHERWISE... Maybe you're divorced without kids, or the kids are off to college. You have no elderly parents to care for. You have no cats, dogs, or goldfish.

You have a good job by most definitions, but deep inside you know it isn't what you want to do till you are in the grave, and certainly not if it means being alone till the end. Most of all, you're lacking a "significant other" with whom to share your life, and your local prospects are dim.

If this is you, you just need to figure out how to make the prison break.

Making that leap of rearranging your life to make it more flexible and more mobile may not be easy, but it IS DOABLE, LIBERATING, and EXCITING. And when it comes to meeting Ukrainian women, it puts the pursuit on a whole new level.

And here's the biggest thing in all this: Assuming your situation is anything like mine was, this plan adds EXCITEMENT to your life!

The call of the wild

If everything you've read here so far sounds like it comes from the experience of a guy who IS DOING IT, you're right.

In a nutshell, after my last I.T. contract job ended I sold, gave away, or threw away almost everything I owned, sold my car, leased out my house, packed a suitcase, and caught a one-way flight to Ukraine.

In the months leading up to my final departure from the U.S. my "story" came up quite a few times.

For example, often when people came over to pick up things I was selling or giving away during my downsizing, or when potential renters for my house came by, they would ask why I was giving away/selling things, why I was selling my car, and why I was leasing out my house.

And for all practical purposes my story was, "Well, my I.T. contract job ended a year ago, I have a little income from web businesses that can support me, but not in the U.S., so, I'm getting rid of all my stuff, leasing out my house, selling my car, packing a suitcase, and planning to live indefinitely in Eastern Europe where I can live for dirt cheap while I work on improving my web income" (it's not the WHOLE story, but close enough for most purposes).

Every time I told the story, the reactions were always ASTONISHMENT, AMAZEMENT, and ENVY.

The conversations that ensued almost always had the flavor of "But wait, you can't do that! How would you earn money? What about your job? What about your house? What about your stuff?..."

Basically they saw a fellow "lifer" preparing for a swim from the island prison to freedom and wanted to know how this fellow inmate thought he could pull that off. All those "What about" questions were the bars on their prison cell keeping them from freedom.

This phenomenon continued and intensified in Kiev. Whenever I encounter American men here in Kiev, whether they be on an AFA* group tour or an individual tour, when they find out what I did they're much more amazed than those I spoke with before I left.

* Note

AFA is "A Foreign Affair", one of the largest pay-per-letter and group tour operations.

With them that yearning is even greater because they've already dipped their toe in the water and seen what Kiev is like, and what Ukrainian women are like, and they already want that. They're already sold. And once such a man sees a guy who "swam the shark infested waters" to freedom, they yearn for that kind of freedom.

I think MOST people would do what I did if they THOUGHT THEY COULD. I can't remember ever meeting a Western man who came to Kiev and didn't wish he could find a way to stay longer.

There is something inspiring about seeing someone escape the artificial, man made constraints we all place on ourselves.

I am living proof that it is POSSIBLE.

I've swam the channel to freedom, crawled on to the shores on the other side, and now I can share my escape plans with you.

For many such people the obstacle is information. They just can't see HOW they could do that. They wouldn't know WHERE TO START.

Well, I did it. I was in prison (metaphorically). And now I'm sipping Mai Tais on the beach (metaphorically).

Literally I'm sitting in an apartment in the center of the city with the world's most beautiful women. I know the way. And now I will give you my escape plans.

I'll answer questions like:

- How can I afford to live in Ukraine for months at a time?
- What will I do with my house/apartment while I'm gone?
- What will I do with my stuff while I'm gone?
- What about my mail when I'm gone for long periods?
- How can I have a U.S. phone number that's FREE to use in Ukraine?
- What about MONEY? How can I get money from my bank?
- How can I get months off from work without losing my job?
- Where can I live in Kiev without going broke?
- How can I get around in Kiev? Won't I need a CAR?
- Will I need to learn Russian or Ukrainian?
- How can I get items from the U.S. to Ukraine?
- AND MOST OF ALL: HOW CAN I MAKE BEAUTIFUL WOMEN A NATURAL PART OF MY EVERY DAY LIFE WITHOUT AGENCIES OR DATING SITES?

Your Journey Awaits!

Well, that concludes the free chapters of Live in Ukraine!

I hope this little preview inspired you to make the leap and learn more. It is only about 20% of the full ebook (based on word count). The remainder of the full ebook is chock full of all the answers to the questions posed at the end of the previous chapter.

And the answer to last question there, "HOW CAN I MAKE BEAUTIFUL WOMEN A NATURAL PART OF MY EVERY DAY LIFE WITHOUT AGENCIES OR DATING SITES?", will blow you away. Seriously.
